Understanding migration waves through Google keyword queries

You are being invited to participate in a research study about Internet use by refugees and migrants in Europe. This research project is being conducted by Professor Vassilis Kostakos of University of Oulu, Finland. The objective of this research project is to attempt to understand how travellers use Google Search. It is being conducted in over 10 locations throughout Athens, Greece.

There are no known risks if you decide to participate in this research study, nor are there any costs for participating in the study. The information you provide will help me understand how best to satisfy the needs of Community Emergency Response Teams in dealing with migration waves, and ultimately prevent human loss.

This survey is anonymous. No one will be able to identify you. No one will know whether you participated in this study. Nothing you say on the questionnaire will in any way influence your present or future travels.

You are free to refuse to participate in this research project or to withdraw your consent and discontinue participation in the project at any time. Your participation will not affect your relationship with the institution(s) involved in this project.

My return of this survey implies my consent to participate in this research and I have been given a second copy of this form to keep for my records.

If you have any concerns about your rights in this study, please contact Professor Vassilis Kostakos of University of Oulu vassilis@ee.oulu.fi or 00358 294 487569.
